"Peoples and Life" Chinese Movie Show

Feature Film

Turpan Love Songs

Music is the outpouring of soul. For decades, generations of Chinese people understand the unique customs and the music style by means of classic Xinjiang folk songs such as "Turpan's Grapes Are Ripening", "Raise Your Red Veil", "Up the Half moon Goes" and "Alamban" and so on. While enjoying aesthetic pleasure, Chinese people appreciate abundant emotions, which are either passionately persistent or playfully humorous. Through the smartly combined presentation of four love songs in series, this film shows the two generation's emotional pursuit of two ordinary Uygur families dwelling in Turpan region. It also shows how the traditional and modern ways of lives are integrated in ethnic inhabited Xinjiang.

As the historic capital of six dynasties, Jinling has always been a centre of Chinese civilization since ancient times, and has numerous influential cultural treasures. Among them are the Ming Dynasty Xiaoling Tomb, which established the 500 year tomb architectural system of the Ming and Qing Dynasties, the former residence of Gan Xi, the largest civilian residence in China, and Mausoleum of Dr. Sun Yat sen, the great pioneer of the Democratic Revolution in China, which is an outstanding work integrating human spirit with architecture.
